Mr. Webster Deer-Hunting.

The following account of a deer-hunt with DAN-IEL WEBSTER is from a letter of the Correspondent of the Commercial Advertiser:

We approached with our horses and wagons, as near as circumstances permitted to the sequestered dells and secret recesses of the timid deer, from which

He bursts the thicket, glances through the glade, And plunges deep in the wildest woods. Our first care was to secure our horses, and at the same time to ensure to them the requisite attention during our absence. This done, our next business was to equip ourselves for a tramp on foot. Waterproof boots, a snug cap, stout cloth pantaloons and a short coat for marching through the woods, climbing hills or fording the smaller streams which constitute the outlet or inlet of the ponds, were just the articles required; and those we have. Our party consists of six, each one of whom has a good gun, plenty of powder and bullets and buckshot, and all the little apparatus for convenience. The Pilgrims, I am told, used the old-fashioned matchlocks instead of the percussion caps with which we are provided. Thus well accoutred, we set forth 'to hunt in couples.' Mr. Webster and myself were together. The dogs we have are well trained, and are accustomed to chase in these woods. My dog Cato, which occasionally performed a conspicuous part in my hunting excursions last Autume, is not up to the business of following bucks and does in these haunts, and is therefore compelled to follow close at my heels, and has performed no higher office than bringing to the shore a duck or two, which, being shot on the wing, fell into the water. We let slip the dogs, and then separated, with an understanding as to the place where we should meet, and as to certain signals which should be given in case any thing remarkable should happen. Mr. Webster and myself, after making our way for some distance through a trackless thicket, at length came to a path not often trodden, but following which we were led to the shore of a good sized pond of water, which in England or Scotland would probably be called a lake, and long since would have been the burden of some immortal song. On the sunny side of a small hillock which rose gradually from the shore of this pond we made a stand, to wait the approach of the deer and to watch the result of the chase, into which the dogs had now entered with hearty good will, believing that the very path which led us there would be the one the game would pursue if found in that neighborhood and routed by the dogs; in which respect we were not mistaken. We sat down on a rock, for a rapid walk of considerable distance, carrying our rifles, had made a moment's rest agreeable to our legs. The rifle which Mr. Webster has is his 'crack gun,' and is a present from a valued friend. He took it out for this occasion because it was the best his gun-house afforded. (and by the by he has the choicest collection in this country,) and because he did not intend to make any mistake in case his eye should be favored with the sight of a stag. My rifle is the one I have had for some time past. At a distance we heard the cry of the hounds, which you know to the ears of a bunter in the field is much more enchanting than the music of an opera. I once heard a gentleman say he would not vote for Daniel Webster for President, because he was not fond of music. Now whether he is or is not fond of what some call music I have no means of knowing, but I will venture the assertion that if the gentleman had been present when Mr. Webster heard these bounds in full cry, as the quavers and demisemiquavers were echoed and re-echoed, he would have been satisfied that Mr. Webster was fond of music, and would have been induced to give him his vote. At first the sounds receded and almost died away, like some of the German music, but after a while they became louder and londer, and it was evident that the dogs were approaching the stand we had fortunately chosen -Knowing the shape of the country Mr. Webster believed they were in a path which would lead them to that poud. The time drew near to 4 o'clock and the dogs had gone around a large circle. Of course we were wide awake and on the sharp look-out. The sensations which I felt were those that excited me when I shot the deer running in the centre of the Delaware River, of which I once gave you an account. But Mr. Webster was as cool and as selfpossessed as when he rose to reply to Senator Havne of South Carolina. He stood erect where he had a full view of the path, that lay before him along the foot of the bill at the water's edge for nearly a hundred rods, with his eyes piercing the thicket to catch a glimpse of the first motion of a

if there should be any occasion for it after he had done his part. The dogs were rapidly approaching. Expectation was on tip-toe. At this moment and at the distance of some eighty or a hundred rods from us, partly across the circle of the shore and just at the water's edge, he saw a deer, and then another, and then another. His ejaculations instantly directed my attention to the spot. Two of them dashed in the water and plunged in their noses to drink, but being the animals routed by the hounds, and of course frantic with fear, they had no inclination to stand still. A few more strains of that music now came upon them in louder tones, indicating too clearly the character of the musicans and the rapid approach of the orchestra, and they darted toward us, continuing their flight. A fine buck led the van, gallantly throwing back his antlers, as if he said, "overtake me if you can, but when he had approached within about thirty rods he met something whose speed exceeded the speed of his pursuers. Mr. Webster, with his usual unerring aim, had lodged in his vitals a fatal bullet, and the stag lay bleeding on the path, unconscious of what had struck him.

A DOCTOR'S PRESCRIPTION TO A DYSPEPTIC Five years ago, Mr. , who keeps within gun-shot of our office, found his health failing. For several days he shut himself up in the house, using such means as were recommended by his friends, but all to no purpose; it was not, however, until after much persuasion by his anxious friends that a medical adviser was called in. His case was stated. The doctor did not seem to be very hasty in making up his mind, but promised to send him something which would no doubt cure

Hour after hour elapsed, and no messenger ar rived. In fact, there had been but one rap at the front door during the afternoon, and that by an awkward boy who was reprimanded for bringing wood saw horse and axe, to the front door, and frected to take them round to the gate. The doco was again sent for.

"Well," says the doctor, " how does the mediine work?"

"The medicine, dear sir? I have seen none." "Ah, I see you don't know how to take it." "But, sir, there is some mistake. I have re cived ne medicine whatever."

"Didn't a boy bring you a saw and accompanients?"

"There was, doctor, something of the kind rought to the door, but if that is your prescripion, how under the sun can a sick man take such adigestible articles? Don't understand, doctor.' "Well, then, I will tell you," said the doctor, and in a low voice slowly proceeded: "To-morow morning, about ten o'clock, put on your surout, go into the wood-house, place a stick of wood in the horse, and ply the saw, as slowly as you blease, for an hour. Then go to your room, and without removing your outer garment, sit by the ire until your respiration subsides. Follow this aily, and you will be your own man again.'

The prescription was strictly followed. It was hard job at first, but every day the medicine vas taken with a better relish. Strength and the owers of digestion returned. The medicine has en continued up to the present day, and, alhough the gentleman is engaged in an extensive usiness, which requires much attention, he has awed and split more than a dozen cords of wood he present winter.

It has been suggested that if, to the nostrums of ne day, saw-dust pills be added, to be taken in he wood-shed, and digested over the wood fire in the house, they would produce more wonderal cures than any pills now extant. [Ports. Jour.

DARR'S PILLS .- From Mr. Noble, Bookseller, Boston: "Boston, August 15, 1842.

"To the Proprietors of Parr's Life Pills: Gentlemen-Having heard of the extraordinary and unexpected cure of my friend Mr. Somerville, by the use of Parr's Life Pills, I applied to him for the particulars of his case, which he has kindly furnished. To his very lucid and striking statements (which I encl. se) I can add nothing: they speak for themselves. But I may observe, that on his leaving Lincolnshire it was the decided impression of all his triends, both in Boston and Stamtord, where he is well known, that his recovery was entirely hopeless—in fact that he was just going home to die, his appearance every way indicating an advanced stage of consumption.

"Please to send me 100 dozen boxes of Parr's Pills, small, and 20 dozen large, as my stock is again low. I perceive my sale since last August has been 18,308 boxes!

"Gentlemen, yours, faithfully. John Noelle, "Wholesale and retail Agent, Boston." From Mr. PETER SOMERVILLE, of Helensburgh, near Edin burgh, addressed to Mr. John Noble, Bookseiler, Boston Lincolnshire:

Spring Bank Cottage, Helensburgh, Aug. 18, 1842.

"Spring Bank Cottage, Helensburgh, Aug. 18, 1842.
"My Dear Mr. Noble: Your kind letter I duly received, and would have answered it immediately, but for a circumstance I have delayed until new. I can assure you nothing gives me more pleasure than to bear witness to all and sundry, the real, and, I am now satisfied, the lasting good I have received from the use of rarr's Life Pills. Some of unyffriends observing the wonderful effects produced on me through them, urged me strongly to make my case known to encourage others afflicted with coughs, &c., to give them a trial; and I was glad to receive from you the same rea trial; and I was glad to receive from you the same request, as you will be able to manage it for me. I am rather at a loss lest I should tall in giving full justice to the efficiency of these Pills over all the medicines I have tried for my complaint, and you know I have now had nearly two years' trial of medical prescriptions for my cough and lia-bility to catch colds, without being one whit better, but I believe worse; and the last physician I consulted laughed at my ignorance when I asked him if there was nothing in physic that would operate as a preventive against taking cold. He shook his head and said No, no; there is no such medicine.' Now, if he had been acquainted with Parr's Life Pills, he would have said, 'Yes, yes; there is such a thing;' and instead of recommending snake-root and Iceland moss, he would have recommended them as an effective of the property of the p fectual medicine for cough, pluerisy and spitting of blood, for that was the three-fold form of my complaint. The cough had become so troublesome that my sleep was broken by continued fits of coughing; my liability to cold and inflammation was so great that a change in the weather and inflammation was so great that a change in the weither, or a walk, or any little exertion, would lay me up, and the usual routine of fasting, purging and blistering had to be resorted to. This I had four times in the course of two months, and then speaking aloud or reading aloud made me a great deal worse, and my strength was so far gone that any little exertion in walking or working was quite sufficient for me. Now look at the change! Before I had taken two small boxes of the Pills, my strength was so far recoered that I commenced to work ten hours a day, and scarcely ever telt wearied, and have done so for these five weeks past; and then as to there being a preventive against cold, I may just mention that the place I went to work in was a school-house, just building; the roof was on it, but as yet there were none of the windows in it, and the draught was very great, more especially as I had never before vrought under such circumstances; yet I wrought, and an "When I began to take Part's Pills, I gave up at the same time the use of tea and coffee, which I believe helped me greatly in getting rid of my complaint. I am fully satisfies the use of tea, especially, is a very bad thing for a cough as I always found my cough much worse after taking tea.

The great good that I have derived from Parr's Pills may be summed up in a few words:

be summed up in a few words:

"First, they increased my strength; all other medicines had a weakening effect upon me but them. I take three, four, and sementnes five pills every twenty-four bours, and instead of being weakened by them, they rather in their models are the strength and instead of being weakened by them, they rather in their continuous transfer and impact lasting peration revive the animal spirits and impart lasting

"Secondly, they go direct to the cough. I had not taken six Pills before I left the cough shaking; its hold upon me became looser and looser every dose I took, and the first, or it may be the second Sunday after I had begun taking them, my triends were remarking to me the great and happy change in my cough, as during the meeting I had scarcely coughed any, while previous to taking them I need to be the great disturber of the meetings by my comused to be the great disturber of the meetings by my com-

This was previously so bad that the doctors agreed from this that my lungs were diseased; and the last advice I got from the doctor was, 'You must take great care of yourself, for your lungs are affected.' Now, whether my lungs are affected or not, I do not pretend to judge, but this I say, that by the use of Parr's Life Pills these two bad symptoms are re-

"Fourthly, they (Parr's Pills) have restored my voice to its natural tone and strength. This all my friends were re-marking who heard me speak in the meeting the other day, and who previously had noticed the weakness of my voice. "Fifthly, by the use of Parr's Pills my natural color is restored. Before taking them my eyes were languid and dull my color was low and deathlike, so much so that a lady told me last week that when she saw me about three months ago she really had little or no hopes of my recovery whereas now my color is healthy, my eyes bright, and t whereas now inv color is healthy, my eyes bright, and the same lady says I am now beginning to get flesh on my face, the cheeks of which were greatly sunk.

"My dear Mr. Noble, I am afraid you will be tired reading this long letter. Other particulars I might mention, but will finish by expressing my heartfelt thanks to the Proprietors of Part's Life Pills, as to them under God I owe the greatest blessing but one—bodily health, the one blessing, which no medicine can bring, I trust you are continually enjoying—health to the sout, to be found only in the light of His countenance whose loving kindness is better than life. I remain most affectionately yours,

Clarendon House, corner of Duane-st, and Broadway A FFECTIONS OF THE LIVER.—
Every invalid should read and redect, if they desire a restoration to health.—I venture to affirm, says an eminont writer, that the grand source of health and disease is con-sected with the natural or disordered function of the liver and that every chronic or lingering illness arises from some defect there. Chronic Hepatitis the most frequent form of the disease in this country, is slow in its progressive stages. The organ of attack will be for years suffering under its under organ of attack will be for years suffering under its under-mining influence, and yet no real disease will indicate to the patient the alarming state under which he is laboring; any transleat indisposition he imputes to a different cause, never suspecting that the liver being affected is the latent source of these disturbed sensations; thus misled, it is not in his power to take the necessary precautions to guard against this insidious enemy to his repose. The symptoms of this disease are often slight and relt for a considerable time, such as fulness after meals, accompanied by oppression, a feeling of vacuity at the pit of the stomach, the mind be-comes irritable, memory defective, incapacity for mental exertion prevails, the appetite becomes variable, tongue turred, month clammy, taste vitiated, slight noise causes a turred, month clammy, taste vitiated, slight noise causes a start, sleep disturbed with frightful dreams, occasionally an objuse pain in the right side, extending to the top of the shoulder, cramp or spasms is often experienced, and nervous twitching of the muscles and acting pain of the limit, nervous or sick beadacte is generally caused by it. It often appears in the form of cough, ashthma, &c. as diseased state of the liver, either by sympathy or pressure induces a derangement of the functions of the lungs and occasion these disorders. By changing the morbid state of the liver the irritation of the lungs immediately gives way. The liver is indeed connection, primarily or secondarily, as cause or effect, with various diseases of the head as well as other parts of the system.

From these views, then, there can be no doubt that the disorders of the liver are of the first importance, and every effort used to remedy them should be conducted on rational principles, and by timely and efficient attention and the use of the most proper medicines, many very serious cense-quences may be prevented, which too often are entailed on constitution by procrastination. As a remedy peculiarly adapted to the cure of liver affec-tions, Dr. Starkweather's Hepatic Elixir has proved to be the most potent and efficacious, and every day's experience confirms mere positively this assertion. It is candidly be-lieved that no preparation has ever been before the public that has met with such unexampled approbation from dis-tinguished sources, distinguished judges, and grateful pa-tients as this medicine, and a greater amount of suffering has been mitigated and more cures permanently effected by it than any other medicine extant.

So confident is the proprietor of its curative properties in every case, that when the medicine is used according to his directions and the patient is not satisfied or convinced, after using one bettle, that it has produced a beneficial effect, his agents are authorised to refund the money paid for it on re-irn of the empty bottle.

DEAD THIS .- Having been afflicted for the last 10 or 12 years with a complication of diseases which confined me to my house and bed a great portion of the time, my stomach extremely weak and sore, violent pains in my side, my strength exhausted, and, in fact, reduced to such a degree that life seemed to be nearly extinct. I was invited by Dr. Starkweather, and by his advice commenced the use of his medicinea—but was so weak and tinct. I was not the use of his medicines—but was so weak and commenced the use of his medicines—but was so weak and debititated that I could take but half the usual dose of the debititated that I could take but half the usual dose of the debilitated that I could take but half the usual dose of the Hepatic Elixir. I had taken so much medicine previously that I had no faith or confidence in any thing that bore the name of medicine. However, I continued the use of the Hepatic Elixir, in half doses, for one week, when I begun to feel its beneficial effects; I was then directed to increase the dose, which I found I could easily bear, and to the utter astonishment of myself and triends, I was soon able to leave my bed, and in a tew weeks was able to ride 30 miles in one day, which I could not have done before at any time in ten my bed, and in a tew weeks was able to ride 30 miles in one day, which I could not have done before at any time in ten years past. I can now do my work about house, and feel perfectly well. I feel truly grateful to the Doctor, for his prescriptions, and sincerely believe the use of his Elixir has restored me to health, and I can do no less than to earnestly entreat all who are suffering with bilions diseases to go and do likewise, and they may rest assured that they will derive as much benefit from it as I bave done. I believe Dr Starkweather's Hepatic Elixer to be a truly valuable medicine. LUCRETIA D. LELAND. Grafton, Mass.
